

Three Forces or Power of Feng Shui-The Study of Time and Space

The first force or energy of Feng Shui comes from the 'heaven' or sky above. In this context, everything that is above the ground that is not attached to the earth is considered 'heaven'. You can see from here that the ancient Chinese direct translation of what heaven's mean, it is cosmic energy! The second force or energy of Feng Shui is earth or anything that is rooted on the ground. And the last force of energy is related to human or living beings. In simple term, Feng Shui is the study of interaction of cosmic, earth and human energies that influence our living and working premises.

Ideal Living or Working premises (Space)

The ideal living or working premises needs to satisfy 3 of the following criteria

1. A good support from the rear; be it a hill, a mountain, or a taller building from behind. However, the support should not be too far nor too close. This is a judgment call base on topographical layout at vicinity; for example, if you live in an Island and by definition you should look at the Island as a whole. The same with county, district or state in c0mparison. Such support is elderly, superior, supplier or some instances are your guiding 'angel' in life. Without such support, you will lack of social skill and ability. Also when you are in trouble you are not able to seek help quickly. Sense of coolness in relationship and in some cases your health is affected too. In simpler term, a good support is for harnessing health issues. This is also making sense since support from rear protects strong gusty wind from entering your house.
2. Bright hall or water element in front of premises is essential for harnessing the wealth energies. This can be easily understood by the fact that most coastal regions attract commercial activities and therefore creating wealth. The ancient Chinese knew this long time ago and Feng Shui is definitely an “environmental study” subject that documented more than 3,000 years ago and is a proven technique. Such energies will come with opportunities, and if your income stream is unstable like commission base or ad hoc basis, such element is definitely a must to keep your income stream more diversify if not more stable.

3. Good supports from both left and right side of your premises. Such supports need not be too high. Such supports actually serve to divert strong or unnecessary wind or energy flow for sides that directly hitting your site. In simple term, such scenario will help the resident from being back stab.

With the three criteria in tact, one must also take into consideration of another important aspect, the ‘time’. The above three criteria serves a hardware and time is the software part that is critical to determine a success of failure of such premises. We will discuss this later in great details. To help you understand time aspect, think of U.S. and Africa in comparison, and think is U.S. and Asia in comparison. For those unable to get rich, it is a matter of time.
